SWEEPS THROUGH AN ATLANTA HOTEL

Most Disastrous Fire in History of The Southern City
INTENSE HORROR
Several Die From Suffocation; Fate of Elderly Couple Unknown

ATLANTA, Ga., May 16—Twenty-three persons perished and an undetermined number of others were missing as fire swept through the five-story Terminal Hotel here early today. It was the most disastrous fire in the city's history from the standpoint of loss of lives.

Believed to have started in a kitchen, the flames spread rapidly and by the time the first firemen reached the scene flames were belching from windows on all floors. Scores of intense horror were witnessed by crowds massed around the flaming building as firemen struggled to save as many of the guests as they could in the face of the blaze. Several persons died from suffocation. The fate of one elderly couple dwelling on the top floor remained unknown. The hotel has 125 rooms, but it was not known definitely how many were occupied. O. J. Parker, chief of the Atlanta Fire Department, said that of the 75 guests registered, only a few were known to have escaped.

Police Captain Neal Ellis, in charge of one police rescue squad, said: "If 75 persons were registered in the hotel, then several score are dead." After the building was virtually gutted, the upper half, flame swept, did not collapse, and it was in this section that rescue workers labored to extricate the dead and injured. Here they believed additional victims would be found, many probably charred beyond recognition.

She renewed her appeal for a more generous response because of the great need for this service.

Announcement was made that Mrs. J. E. Erwin, president, has a quantity of seeds on hand for free distribution. These may be had by calling at her home on East Bridge street.

MORRISVILLE BOYS
WIN SCHOOL MEET AT QUAKERTOWN

Class "A" Title Returns To Lower End After Lapset of Two Years

NEWTOWN IN CLASS "B"

Bristol Wins Class "C" and Fallsington Retains Class "D" Honors

QUAKERTOWN, May 16—After a lapse of two years, the highly coveted Class "A" title finally returned to a lower county school when the Morrisville's fleet-footed tracksters galloped away with all the honors, as they survived the ordeals in the 18th annual Bucks County Interscholastic Track Meet, here, Saturday. In the other classes, Newtown broke into the winning of Class "B" after Falls Township held a virtual monopoly on the title for the past five years, while Bristol remained practically invincible as their four-man team easily took Class "C." Fallsington, however, retained its Class "D" title.

Morrisville gained 40 points in the light events to lead this group competition, with the speedsters of Sellersville-Perkasie far behind with 23 points. The local colors of the Red and Grey started an up-grade march to first place as they rose to top position this year with 21 1/2 points, during which they were closely pressed by the Langhorne Redskins, who had the total of 19 counters. In the order in which they stand, Quakertown and Bensalem scored 10 1/2 and 6 points.

Newtown had a considerable margin over Fallsington, her nearest opponent, as 40 points in the final tabulation. The Orange and Black were second with 39 tallies and yet was not neither near first place nor the third place team. Although Buckingham was not in the race for the first place position with 12 1/2 counters, they had to scrap hard to outlive the fighting spikes of their nearest rival, Newtown, who had 11. Southampton broke up the tail end of the scoring list with 10 1/2 points.

Bristol High School's wizards of the cinder path had it easy going in their junior high Class "C" victory, as they gathered 30 counters to their nearest opponent, Quakertown's 17 1/2. Sellersville-Perkasie amassed a total of 13 1/3 scattered points, while Bensalem, Langhorne and Morrisville scored 11, 2 1/3 and 1 1/3, respectively. The Red and Grey track team have been capturing this event for a good many years but came close to losing it last year when they barely out-ran Sellersville-Perkasie by 1/3 of a point. The final scores read Bristol 30 1/2 and Sell-Perk 30.

Fallsington rated a perfect average for Class "D" as the Black and Orange team was entered for the last two years and finished with two wins. The men of Mike DeRisi scored 38 points to Richboro's 17. Again there was a close race for the third position, with Buckingham, possessing 11 points; Lower Makefield 9, and Newtown 8.

Morrisville had five firsts and three seconds in all, out of the eight events. A Beetle was the individual star of Morrisville as he captured the 100 yard dash in 10.6 seconds, and the 220 yard dash with the clocking of 23.9 seconds. Al Baehr took the 440 yard run in 52.5 seconds, bettering the record by 7/10 of a second. The 880 yard run record was also shattered when Johnson led his event to the tape, with the excellent time of 2:03.9. To end the first place massacre, they were victorious in the mile relay which was clocked in 3:41.3, for a new meet record. The only other record broken in Class "A" was by Bristol's track star, "Blitz" Wollard. He threw his body in the air 20' 4 1/4" to easily win. Danny DiMidio, also of Bristol, put up a strong bid for the shot put record but lost out by 5 inches. His heave was 44 feet 10 1/2 inches.

The Blue and White of Newtown really went to town in Class "B" when they captured six out of seven starts. To start it off, Ed Smith tossed the 12-pound shot 35' 10 1/4". Al Driver then proved himself a triple winner when he took the 220 yard dash in 25.5, the high jump at 5' 2", and the broad jump, when he jumped 18' 3".

WONDERS OF PSYCHOLOGY

For those who might be mildly curious about the Woods twins, now six years old, a reporter hunted up the boys in their New York home. The Woods twins, you may faintly remember, spent their first two years as human guinea pigs in a psychological laboratory. One of the boys received scientific guidance while the other was permitted to grow a la Topsy, with nothing but a father and mother to guide him. Now that they are of school age, Johnny and Jimmy gave the reporter an interesting afternoon, but the scribe, who was raised without benefit of science came away with a quite unscientific sheaf of notes and no conclusion. Perhaps there isn't any.

The writer-observer did, however, record certain facts and incidents which may mean something or nothing. Jimmy, the Topsy lad, is the smartest boy in kindergarten, say his teachers, even smarter than the science-raised Johnny. Jimmy also answered the interviewer's question more readily. Both boys tore up the reporter's copy paper and broke his pencils, but Johnny is slightly, ever so slightly bashtul, and has two teeth missing as a result of a fall downstairs recently. Jimmy on the other hand, is not as husky as his twin, although their frequent wrestling matches about the house always end in draws. Jimmy loves to fall in the mud, whereas Johnny prefers to "jump in the lake." Jimmy says he likes to eat pig's feet, but never saw any, and Johnny wants to be like Tom Sawyer when he grows up. Take your pick.

The twins' father, a track driver, was present during the interview. The mother was not; she was at a hospital with a case of nerves.

TWO-WHEELER SAFETY

Engulfed as we are by the machine age, city folk find it pleasing to see an occasional horse on the streets as a remembrance of old times, and the sight of a boy on a bicycle recalls the simplicity and happiness of our own youth. However, in the busy city traffic a boy on a bicycle is in a dangerous place, and with the increased congestion of spring and summer traffic, the hazard to bicyclist and motorist is increased alarmingly.

The greatest danger lies in the failure of the bicycle rider to realize that he is as much obligated to observe all traffic laws, signs and signals as is the motorist and pedestrian. Because he is on a more mobile vehicle than the gasoline buggy, the bicyclist is tempted to dart in and out of traffic lanes and to violate other regulations laid down for the expedition and safety of traffic movement. Realizing the menace to the lives of bicyclists and motorists alike, the Pennsylvania State officials urge all motorists to be on the alert, and to the bicycle riders it issues a warning not to play with life and death, but to keep place in the traffic procession, to ride near the pavement edge, to ride single file, to beware of "hitching" to street cars and automobiles, to watch other traffic in turning around a parked car or before leaving a driveway, and to observe all traffic rules laid down for motorists and pedestrians, especially at crossings.

The advice is good, the rules are simple, and the observance of both advice and rules will contribute much to hold down the traffic fatality toll of 1938.

Elsewhere than in Germany, Hitler thinks a minority is right.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Nov. 2, 1876. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

At Fallsington there has been constructed a neat and substantial building by Miss Williamson, of Philadelphia. The building was erected for the use of a Union Sabbath School, and is all the work of this generous lady. On Sunday last it was dedicated and given over to the Sabbath School. The ceremonies commenced at three o'clock with singing and prayer. Mr. E. G. Harrison acted as president, and opened with a few remarks, stating how Miss Williamson's attention had been called to the work, and the purpose for which it was given. Rev. Mr. Rogers then spoke in glowing terms of the kindness of the giver, and called upon the teachers of the Sabbath School to appreciate it, and work more earnestly for advancement. Mr. McGlathery, a recent superintendent of the Sunday School, followed.

A destructive fire took place in Bristol last Friday morning. About two o'clock, Snedeker's machine shop was discovered to be on fire. The flames spread rapidly, and in spite of all that the fire companies and citizens could do to save the machine shop, the wheelright shop, foundry, two blacksmith shops and a stable were entirely consumed. A pair of houses, owned by Charles Welks, were also badly burned. Mr. Snedeker's loss is heavy; he had some insurance on the building, but his machinery and work finished and in process of completion is all swept away. He had seven steam engines, one of them about completed, on hand at the time of the fire. His loss, it is estimated, amounts to $10,000.

A rousing meeting was held last night at Caber's Hall. At an early hour the room was packed with people to hear the Hon. C. N. Taylor discuss the questions of the tariff and hardtimes. Mr. Taylor made a capital and convincing address, and was listened to throughout with marked attention although he occupied about three hours in the delivery of his speech.

The Centennial judges gave an award to C. W. & J. Peirce, manufacturers of Felt Goods, "for a capital display of felts for carpetings, skirts, and other purposes, made of all wool, and cotton and wool. The fabrication is substantial and excellent, and the designs of the carpetings and erum cloths remarkable for originality and beauty."

A valuable Alderney cow belonging to Mrs. Alice Rousseau, was killed by a locomotive last Sunday morning, near the Otter Creek bridge.

Hon. E. G. Harrison, Henry M. DuBois, Esq. and E. W. Keeler, Esq. addressed a large Republican open air meeting at Bridgeton last night.

HULMEVILLE—Last Friday evening at the Hulmeville Y. M. C. A. was the regular literary entertainment. The Association opened with singing, prayer being offered and Scriptures read by the vice-president, E. G. Harrison. Following was volunteered: Reading, Mrs. McCoy; recitation, Sallie Gill; reading, by Miss Ella Keen; singing; recitation by Emeline Brinkloe; recitation by Miss Laura Infield. Mr. Harrison filled out the balance of the evening by a lecture on Egypt.

NEWPORTVILLE—William C. McEwen has been appointed agent for Davis' History of Bucks County.

The meeting at Union Hall, on Monday evening last, was well attended by men of both parties. Speeches were made by Messrs. DuBois, White and Yardley. The Hulmeville Hayes and Wheeler club was present, and the meeting was highly satisfactory.

WARMINSTER—The property of Eagle Lodge, I. O. O. F., at Huntington Valley, is soon to be disposed of at public vendue.

LANGHORNE—Joseph Watson and Joseph K. Harding have had their two large hogs slaughtered—the heavier weighing 572 pounds.

Last Monday was the sale of Wilson Townsend's standing timber, cord wood and corn, by Thomas Eastburn, Esq. Corn sold for 26 cents a shock, without the fodder. The prices realized were not exorbitant.

"CONTRABAND" by Dennis Wheatley

SYNOPSIS

Gregory Sallust, young English private investigator, is greatly interested in the affairs of the beautiful Hungarian girl, Sabine Szenc, for two reasons: first, because her beauty and charm are irresistible; second, because she is associated with Lord Gavin Fortescue, a sinister, shadowy figure in international affairs. Fortescue is a strange looking little man, curiously misshapen. Sallust knows him by reputation and has begun to suspect that he and Sabine are concerned in certain illegal activities which Gregory is investigating for Sir Pellinore Gwaine-Cust, a British industrial giant. Gregory and Sabine have become friends, although she will tell him nothing of herself or her relations with Fortescue. In saving Inspector Wells, a Scotland Yard man from a brawl in a cafe near Deauville, France, where Sabine had lured the victim, Gregory gains possession of a mysterious coded telegram dropped during the fight. Sabine refuses to enlighten Gregory on the telegram, warning him it is dangerous to know too much. She agrees to spend the following day with the infatuated Gregory. Dining at a roadside inn, Sabine is filled with apprehension for Gregory's safety when she sees "The Limper," one of Lord Gavin's henchmen, watching them. Later, when Gregory goes to get his car, he is attacked by a man who throws pepper in his eyes. Sabine disappears. Returning to England Gregory's suspicions of Lord Gavin Fortescue are confirmed by Sir Pellinore. Although Inspector Marrowlat of Scotland Yard refuses to admit the matters the police and Gregory are investigating are related, he assigns Wells to follow Gregory, hoping to learn something important. That night Gregory, accompanied by his servant, Rudd, flies to Calais, France. Later the two, dressed in rough clothes, watch five hard looking men in the "Cafe de la Cloche" mentioned in the mysterious telegram. When these ruffians are summoned from the cafe by a motor horn Gregory and Rudd follow. Peeping through a hedge they see Lord Gavin Fortescue, with Sabine, in a limousine. The two drive off after handing Corot, one of the thugs, some papers. The men, trailed by Gregory and Rudd, tramp to a secret landing field near the sea, where they light great fires. One by one a dozen planes land to unload cases of smuggled goods. The stealthy watchers start running back to Calais, in an attempt to trail the smuggler's fleet in their own plane.

CHAPTER XI
As soon as they were clear of the slope Gregory broke into a long loping trot which Rudd, who was half a head shorter but a far more muscular man found it difficult to keep up with.

The going for the first mile over the coarse grass was tiring and tricky, for they felt it too risky to show a light, but when they reached the track Gregory produced his big army torch and lighted the way as they ran on side by side.

Luck was with them when, panting and breathless, they reached the road, for they had hardly gone two hundred yards along it in the direction of Calais when a truck loaded with fresh vegetables came rattling up behind them. Gregory hailed the driver in French and offered fifty francs for a lift into the town. The man blessed his luck and, gasping from their exertions, they scrambled into the back of the vehicle.

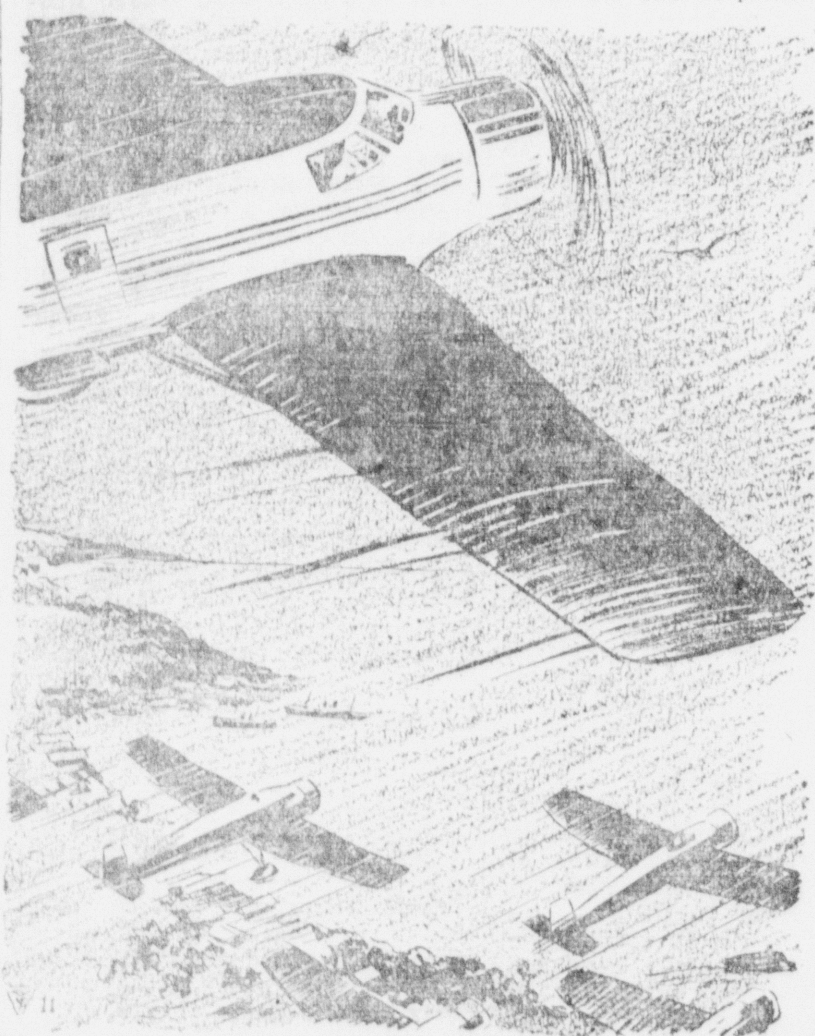

"So it's smugglers we're after," said Rudd when he had regained his wind. "I thought smugglers was a back number nowadays."

"Not a bit of it," Gregory assured him. "Free trade put them practically out of business for several generations, but since protection came in with the National Government the whole racket has started up again. That's why Sir Pellinore's people are getting so hot up. They've been going down thousands a week in the last eighteen months and this new smuggling racket is the reason. But there's a more sinister side to it than that. I've been put on to try and run this dangerous organization to earth, so that we can hand particulars over to the authorities and have it mopped up."

"Seems like you've succeeded pretty quick, sir."

"Good Lord no! What we've seen tonight is only one thread in the tangled skein. These people must be operating on a huge scale. They've probably got half a dozen bases on this side, because if they sent every cargo from that dip in the downs the French police would get wind of it before long. We've got to find out where they land their stuff in England and how they distribute it afterwards too."

Gregory climbed again, allowing the smuggler fleet to fly beneath...

"Seems a chancy game ter me, anyhow, with all the planes there are flying about these days. Some bloke might fly over casual like any old night 'nd spot those flares."

Gregory shook his head. "Didn't you notice the flares were placed irregularly, so that the valley would not have the appearance of a regular landing ground from the air? Besides, Gavin Fortescue is as wily as the traditional serpent. We've got to give him that. If anybody visited that base in the day time there wouldn't be a thing to show what's going on, not even a cart track, because the goods are all consigned to one of the little fishing villages on the coast and brought up underground through the caves."

"Maybe, Mr. Gregory, sir, but what about all them planes? They've got ter have 'angars, ain't they? Though I didn't see none."

"Of course you didn't, because the planes are not kept there. Each one is probably registered as a privately owned machine and housed separately somewhere between here and Paris. Then, when these night birds get their orders, they go up, only land here long enough to take over their cargo, and are away again over the sea. I doubt if the whole operation takes more than half an hour. So if they don't use any one base too frequently, the chances are all against their being caught," in an almost unbroken stretch of countery like this."

place was so near by the measure of air travel that he would have been compelled to fly low over it and perhaps give away to the smugglers the fact that they were being watched. Instead, he spiraled round and round to gain altitude then, when he had reached three thousand feet, turned the plane's nose towards the west.

It was the dark period between moons and he guessed that the smugglers had purposely chosen this and the succeeding dates mentioned in the telegram to run through their cargoes. But there was little cloud and many stars lit the August night. By their faint glow it was quite possible to make out the coast line and his position was easily ascertainable from the harbor lights of Calais and Boulogne.

As they passed over Mount Couple he felt a stab of disappointment. The flares in the hidden valley were no longer burning so he assumed that the secret fleet had already sailed, but he turned his plane seaward in the hope that he might yet pick them up.

They had been cruising for about five minutes and were well out over the water when Rudd tapped him on the shoulder and jerked a grimy thumb towards their tail.

Gregory looked back towards the coast and saw what it was that had caught Rudd's attention. Dead in their rear certain stars in a long oval patch of sky seemed to be blacked out for a moment and then show up again. It was the smuggler fleet behind them and Gregory cursed himself as a fool for not having realized that the flares were only necessary to guide the planes in to their unofficial landing ground. Directly all the machines had arrived the flares would be put out in order further to shorten the time in which discovery of the secret base was possible by a casual plane passing over.

He began to climb again, his intention being both to gain further altitude and, by the resulting loss of speed, to allow the smuggler fleet to pass under him. Ten minutes later he was up at five thousand feet and dimly silhouetted below him against the sea stretched the long line of heavy bombers; but they were climbing too now and he judged that they meant to pass over the English coast at as great an altitude as possible, in order to escape drawing attention to themselves by the roar of their engines.

Handle Bars...On a Bicycle Built for One

Dear Son:

We welcome you and Helen back from your honeymoon. After you've settled a bit we'll drop in to see your new home.

I remember the day, some thirty years ago, when your Mother and I came back to our first home. I split kindling for the cast-iron kitchen stove, and it took Mother all afternoon to bake some bread. Instead of her vacuum-cleaner, Mother had a broom... and how she made it fly. But our prize possession was in the parlor... a real talking-machine, with chubby cylinder-records and a big morning-glory horn.

We used to march for miles all over town on our shopping trips. How I fidgeted while Mother shopped. We were both worn out.

Things have changed a lot since then, all right — and you'll both be better off for it. Helen won't have to spend half her days in the kitchen like Mother used to. The advertisements in the daily newspaper will save her those punishing miles of shopping. They'll keep her posted on current values, give her the names of dependable products, tell her all about special sales. When you come home nights you'll find her fresh as a daisy... ready for a jolly evening with your friends.

I'll trade the "good old days" for the good NEW days any day.

But enough of reminiscence... I rejoice in the exciting years of youth that are ahead for you both.

Affectionately,

Dad

Bristol Student Wins Secondary Essay Award

Benjamin Franklin Memorial and unveiling of the heroic marble statue of Franklin, May 19-21.

Judges of the contest, in reviewing the hundreds of essays submitted from the various counties surrounding Philadelphia, report a creditable assembly of compositions, which show that the youth of today rates high in intelligence and ability to prepare essays of merit. In judging the papers written on the given subject: "What Franklin Did for America and for Us Who Live Today," the best essays were selected for: 1. Adherence to title; 2. Grammatical construction; 3. Originality; 4. Neatness; 5. Adherence to mechanical requirements; 6. Historical accuracy; 7. Intelligent conception of the greatness of Franklin; 8. Facility of written expression; 9. Apportioned on the basis of population by counties.

It is interesting to know that among the twenty-four County (secondary) awards, fourteen winners were girls and ten boys.

Each winner will receive due notification and will be invited as a guest of the Poor Richard Club to come to their clubhouse, 1319 Locust Street, Philadelphia, reporting not later than 10 a. m. Saturday, May 21. From the club house, they will be taken to the various parts of the city to view historical places of interest, including the Liberty Bell, Independence Hall and Franklin's Grave. They will return to the Club where luncheon will be served. Immediately after luncheon, they will be driven to a point and head a Youth's Day parade of upward of 10,000 boys in uniformed marching groups. Promptly at 2:30, the winners will assemble on the steps of the state Franklin Institute where they will be presented silver plaques from the Poor Richard Club and five-year memberships in The Franklin Institute. After the ceremonies the honored contestants will be invited to view the beautiful marble statue of Franklin in the Franklin Memorial Hall and visit the extensive scientific displays in the Museum.

SAP TO THE RESCUE

COLEBROOK, Conn.—(INS)—This is a sappy story.

Norfolk firemen, after racing five miles to a burning house here found no water available.

Snatching pails of sap from trees on the estate, the firemen smothered the flames.

But the radiator of the firetruck had steamed over.

Undaunted, the firemen took a remaining pail of sap and poured its contents into the firetruck's radiator.

Professional Men Hit Heavier In Per Cent of Drop in Income Than Persons Working for Wages

NEW YORK—Although professional men have higher incomes than other groups, they have lost more heavily by the depression than wage earners.

This is one of the interesting observations contained in an analysis of national income edited by Maxwell S. Stewart of the Public Affairs committee, a research group.

It was found that the typical American, working in a factory, earned $993 in 1936, the last year for which complete figures are available, as against $1,500 for 1929. When the decline in the cost of living is taken into consideration, however, this average American worker had 94 cents in 1936 for every $1 in 1929, the survey showed.

Incomes of physicians in 1936 were from 20 to 30 per cent lower than in 1929. Similarly, lawyers' incomes were cut down from 18 to 38 per cent. In the professional class those with the highest incomes were hardest hit, individuals reporting incomes of $25,000 to $100,000 a year in 1929 having their revenue reduced from 50 to 60 per cent.

Commenting on the sources of income, the report states that there is one striking change between 1929 and 1936. In 1929 only eight per cent of the total national income was derived from federal or local governments. By 1935 almost 15 per cent was thus obtained, and there was a 43 per cent increase in the amount of governmental expenditures.

"Pump Priming" Is Felt

At the same time, the building industry contributed four per cent of the total income in 1929 but yielded only 1.7 per cent in 1936. Despite the shrinkage in national income for the period covered by the report, the proportions divided between labor and business were about the same for 1929 and 1936, indicating that while all groups had been cut, the reductions were about the same for each classification.

While hourly wages have increased since 1929, there are several other factors which bear on the picture. The working week is much shorter than in pre-depression days and there have been more layoffs in the past several years. As a result, even though the average hourly wage rose from 56 cents in 1929 to 57 cents in 1936, pay envelopes were lighter because fewer hours were worked.

Next to professional men, the largest number of high incomes was among the self-employed. The survey indicated, however, that there appeared to be a larger proportion of self-employed business men with very low incomes than is the case with wage earners and white-collar workers.

Analysis of high incomes revealed that they came from four distinct sources: high occupational earnings obtained by unusually talented men; gains from speculation; profits due to monopoly or administrative genius; and returns from capital acquired through savings wisely invested.

In conclusion, the report suggested that attention be given to improving the productive efficiency of the country as a whole, broadening the opportunities of certain sections of the population, and extending the public and social services which supplement the actual cash income of the individual.

Chairman Democratic State Committee

An Important Message to Every Pennsylvania DEMOCRAT

keep credit in private hands they had better be more liberal in lending. Coming from anyone else in the Administration, this would have been more or less true to form and not mattered much, but coming from Mr. Jones it was a shock to business men and bankers from which they have not yet recovered. For one thing, they know Mr. Jones knows better. They know he knows that banks have much more idle money than they want and are only too anxious to lend at lower interest than anyone can remember.

THEY KNOW, too, that Mr. Jones isn't lending RFC money on security which private bankers wouldn't accept. They had every right to believe he understood the situation and was unsympathetic with unfounded criticism. They also know that Mr. Jones' own bank in Houston is no more liberal than any other "liquid" bank. The figures given for the Jones bank are these—cash, $20,000,000; Government securities, $9,200,000; other securities, $3,600,000; loans, $9,000,000; deposits, $37,500,000. In brief, coming from Mr. Jones, this lecture to the banks, it is contended, was absurd. They were sorry to have him talk that way, but "suppose he has to every once in a while."

VARIOUS other non-cooperative moves upon the part of the Administration, following Mr. Hanes' widely heralded co-operation plan, could be cited if there were space. The point is that these staged "get-together" efforts all end the same way. The thing has been tried and failed enough times to make its futility clear. Mr. Roosevelt still believes he can spend his way back to prosperity. Despite a gigantic failure, costing sixteen billions, despite his own recorded words and despite the practically unanimous disapproval of big and little business men, he is bent upon trying the same thing again. The only "practical suggestion" a business man could make to him is "don't," and that he won't take. Mr. Hanes is an earnest young man who apparently hasn't added things up in Washington yet. The time will come when he, along with the business men who have been used so often in this co-operation game, will wonder why their common sense didn't tell them they were wasting their time.

"The Big Apple," sensational dance craze from the south, has taken the nation by storm. Everybody's doing it. But it takes Hollywood to immortalize it.

The screen at the Grand Theatre is currently rocking with the foot-beats of "The Big Apple," as film stars lock arms and go into their dance in "Start Cheering."

Hal LeRoy, famous eccentric dancer of Ziegfeld Follies fame, and recently in the Broadway musical production, "Strike Me Pink," and Virginia Dale, head an ensemble of 200 film dancers in a mass interpretation of "The Big Apple."

BRISTOL

An action-packed story of beautiful young girls who help America's most dangerous racketeers carry on their war against the nation's business is told in "Tip-Off-Girls," the Paramount drama which had its local premiere last night at the Bristol Theatre.

Lloyd Nolan, playing his most important screen role since "Ebb Tide," is teamed with pearl-blond Mary Carlisle in an exciting tale of what happens when Washington sends out its most daring young G-man to break up a band of hijackers and the young man loses his heart to the beautiful secretary of the racket-chief.

Love is caught in the dangerous cross-currents of crime when the boss, J. Carrol Nash, learns of their plans to deliver him up to the law. He moves swiftly and, although Nolan manages to escape, carries off Miss Carlisle as a hostage. Accompanied by his fellow G-men, Nolan chases the gangsters across the country in a thrilling race and fights it out with them in an exciting gun-battle.

A talented supporting cast carries off high acting honors. It includes Larry Crabbe, Evelyn Brent and Anthony Quinn.

POSTPONE RACES AT LANGHORNE UNTIL SUNDAY

Auto races, scheduled for Langhorne yesterday, were postponed until next Sunday, with the same program and same star-studded field set to go into action in a truly pre-Indianapolis card.

In fact seven of the entries who are entered in the "500" will ride through the night Saturday in a special plane chartered by Ralph Hankinson to bring them from the first day of qualification on the Hoosier Speedway to the Langhorne races.

The time schedule will remain the same with gates opening at 10 a. m., daylight time, trials starting at noon and races proper at three o'clock.

Intermittent showers, cool and inclement weather caused calling off the races yesterday with half a hundred disappointed drivers having a week to wait before they can ride for gold and glory on the world's fastest mile circular track.

Remaining the same, the entry list is as follows: Bert Ross, Don MacDonald, Chet Gardner, Gus Zarka, Ted Horn, Phil Richmond, Frankie and Mike Bailey, Tony Willman, Vern Orendorff, Bob Sall Jack Moon, Henri Guerard, Johnnie Matara, Red Redmond, Bud Henderson, Milt Marion, Doc Keim, Deacon Litz, Duke Nalon, Chuck Tabor, Honey Parick, Harry Sheeler, Walt Ader, Bill Meinke, Al Aspen, Walt Buckman, Tom Tomlinson, Red Hoagland, Frankie Reynolds, Bill Fox, Charlie Breslin and Al Cusick.

The card calls for time trials, three 10-mile qualifying heats, a ten-mile semi-feature and a 50-mile feature final sweepstakes. Although Chet Gardner, Ted Horn, Bob Sall and Tony Willman rule as favorites, the expression "anything can happen at Langhorne," may prevail Sunday.

TICKETS GO ON SALE FOR FIRST BOXING NIGHT

Tickets for the opening outdoor amateur boxing show to be held in the St. Ann's A. A. Arena next Monday night will go on sale tonight. The committee in charge of reservations requests the fans who wish to have their seats reserved for the season to get them immediately.

Seats may be reserved by phoning the St. Ann's club-house, 9934, or getting in touch with a St. Ann's committeeman. Match-maker Johnny Strafe expects to complete his card within a few days.

TO PLAY GERMANTOWN

"Johnny" Mulholland's Bristol A. A. team will play Germantown tomorrow evening at Germantown. Germantown recently beat Wentz-Olney. Mulholland will use his regular lineup against the "Germies." Leedom's field is expected to be in tip-top shape this week, and so it is likely that the A. A. will begin its home games this week end.

"FLIT" PIEO FINISHES FOURTH IN CLIMB EVENT

Roman "Flit" Pieo, two-time National A. A. U. rope climb champion, was dethroned of his title in that event in the National gymnastic meet at the Philadelphia Turners club on Saturday afternoon.

The former Bristol High student and present Stroudsburg State Teachers College gymnast, finished up in the number four spot among the boys who scaled the 25 foot rope to ring the bell. This was the lowest spot he has finished in all four years he has entered the National meet, having finished up in second place in 1935 and in both '35 and '37 he won the crown to become the National Rope Climb champion. His time in this year's meet was also the poorest he has ever made in any A. A. U. meet previously.

His time was his slowest time until yesterday. In that meet he rang the bell in 6.4 seconds, and although he bettered his time by 2 seconds to 6.2 in 1936, it availed him only second place. Last year, however, he clipped 2 seconds more off his '36 mark to hit the ceiling in 6 seconds flat. On Saturday afternoon, his time was a slow 6.6 for "Flit." This was attributed, it was stated, to the pulled ligament in his wrist in working on the parallel bars during a gym exhibition last winter and which kept him out of the ring competition this year.

The winning time this year was equal to "Flit's" title winning time of last year when he was clocked at 6 seconds flat. And the winner was Stanley Ellison of Navy, who rung the bell in that fast time. Two other Midshipmen, Phil Sawyer, and Lou DeCamp finished in the number two and three spots respectively to make a clean sweep for the Navy in that event. Sawyer was timed at 6.2 while DeCamp was on the bell in 6.3. The fifth and final spot winner was Marvin Supinsky of Temple, who made it in 6.9.

The second week of the first half of the Bristol Twilight League gets under way with two games being scheduled: St. Ann's meeting Grundy's and Rohm and Haas playing the Odd Fellows.

The Grundy team is very anxious to break into the win column and expects to do it at the hands of the league leaders. Manager Roy Fry will send Ralph Narcisi against the Saints while John Parell, St. Ann's, is expected to use Pete Firce against the woolen workers. The St. Ann's team is scheduled four times this week.

Dismayed at his trouncing at the hands of the St. Ann's nine, Manager Warren Bilger, Odd Fellows, may do a little shaking up in his line-up. It is likely that he will use his ace, "Jake" Fraul against the chemical mixers who are undefeated. Vanzant may be Andy Pfaffenrath's choice for hill duty.

Both games start at six-thirty o'clock sharp.

Morrisville Boys Win School Meet Held at Quakertown

George Dutton ended the first place monopoly when he ripped around the 220 yards to win with a time of 23.8.

In Class "C" the Bristol bearers of the Red and Grey took three out of five events. Four men for Bristol—that's all that were needed to be victorious. L. Galzerano vaulted 4' 8" to cop the high jump and also placed second in broad jump. C. Peterpaul created a new record in the eight pound shot when he putted the pill 37' 8". Then the team (Galzerano, Plebani, DiAngelo and Peterpaul), working as a unit, made a new record in the half mile relay with the fast time of 1:45.6.

Fallsington captured three out of five starts in the Class "D" division. Al Turner high jumped 4' 6" to win this contest. Then Joe Rappo did a big act in winning two events. He ran the 60 yard dash with the clocking of 7.2, and broke the eight-pound shot put record with a heave of 42' 1 1/2".

Although weather conditions weren't favorable, eight records were broken during the course of the meet. In Class "A", the broad jump was broken by "Blitz" Wollard of Bristol, the 440 yard run by Baehr of Morrisville, the 880 yard run by Johnson of Morrisville. The mile relay was also captured by the Bulldogs. In Class "C", the broad jump was shattered by Mauble, Quakertown, with a leap of 18' 8 3/4". The eight-pound shot was won by Peterpaul of the Bristol team, and the Bunnies also cracked the half mile relay record. In Class "D", Joe Rappo of Fallsington created a new eight-pound shot put record.
